Clean. Pure. Science.

The Clean Label Project is a national non-profit with the mission to bring truth and transparency to consumer product labeling. Using actual retail sampling and testing, we establish evidence-based benchmarks to identify the America's best products using data and science as opposed to marketing.

Together, we are changing the definition of food and consumer product safety in America.

Objectives and Disclaimers

This Code of Practice: Purity Award provides criteria for the evaluation and marketing of manufacturers seeking compliance and certification for their products to the Clean Label Project Code of Practice: Purity Award. The implied compliance, evaluations, and the contents contained within are limited exclusively to meeting the minimum requirements for the Clean Label Project Code of Practice: Purity Award. It is the responsibility of the Operator to comply with all applicable state, national, and international laws such as, but not limited to, California Prop 65, FDA food labeling laws, FDA food safety laws, FDA pesticide tolerance level requirements, Country of Origin labeling, Tobacco, Tax, and Trade Bureau Laws, and USDA National Organic Program requirements, as applicable. It is also the responsibility of the Operator to comply with any applicable voluntary third-party private schemes such as, but not limited to Organic, Fair Trade, and Global Food Safety Initiative benchmarked standards.

In no way does compliance to this Code of Practice: Purity Award imply compliance to any other state, federal, or international regulation or private standard. The Clean Label Project does not assume, displace, or undertake to discharge any obligations or responsibilities of the manufacturer or any other party, including but not limited to those responsibilities and obligations arising from the other certifications or standards referenced within this Code of Practice: Purity Award. Under no circumstances shall Clean Label Project or any of its affiliates be liable for direct, indirect, incidental, consequential, special, punitive or any other use of this Code of Practice: Purity Award. While this standard is approved for use in domestic and global markets, it is the responsibility of the Operator to understand the necessary labeling and marketing laws of the intended market. This Code of Practice: Purity Award may be revised from time to time. Use of this Code of Practice: Purity Award is strictly voluntary.

Code of Practice

I. Purpose

Over the past several years, there has been a significant increase in the number of consumer product attribute certifications. Certifications such as Organic<sup>1</sup>, Non-GMO Project<sup>2</sup>, Gluten-free<sup>3,4</sup>, and Fair Trade<sup>5</sup> all serve as markers of quality and are increasingly being looked for on packaging by consumers shopping for products that align with their belief systems. Market opportunities exist for growers, suppliers, manufacturers, brand owners, and retailers looking to curate products that meet these consumer expectations.

Similarly, significant strides are being made in food and product safety. California Proposition 65<sup>6</sup> was originally created to address the growing concern amongst consumers about exposure to toxic chemicals. The State of California publishes a list of chemicals known to cause cancer or birth defects or other reproductive harm. While the issue of consumer exposure to toxic chemicals is not limited to the state of California, Prop 65 has moved the needle at the national level when it comes to 1) increasing manufacturer attention on the use of chemicals of concern and improving the quality/purity of ingredients used and 2) consumer protection. Due to government agencies such as the Consumer Product Safety Commission<sup>7</sup>, the Food and Drug Administration's Food Safety Modernization Act<sup>8</sup>, and momentum behind private efforts including the Global Food Safety Initiative<sup>9</sup>, the supply chain is increasingly becoming accustomed to the quality, system rigor and investment necessary to meet these requirements. Consumer investigations coupled with government investigations such as Congressional investigation into heavy metals in baby food has resulted in consumer retail and regulatory drivers for food safety regulatory reform.

While the industry is making advances in food and product safety handling and production, consumers continue to have their trust in the food and consumer product industry tested. Exposés including melamine in pet food<sup>10</sup> and arsenic in infant rice cereal<sup>11</sup>, increasing attention is being made to chemicals of concern in food and consumer products. Recent media attention given public health crises including lead in drinking water in Flint, Michigan<sup>12</sup>, air quality concerns given the increased cadmium levels in Portland, Oregon<sup>13</sup>, and the recent United Nations meeting on antibiotic-resistance putting it on par with HIV and Ebola epidemics<sup>14</sup>, all serve as additional catalysts and give rise to the trend toward consumer demand for transparency on the contents of their products beyond what's on the label. The dialogue of "food safety" is evolving from the safe handling, storing and preparing of food to prevent infection and disease to also include the long-term potential adverse health impacts from food impurities.

The Clean Label Project Code of Practice looks for substances that would never be found on a product label. These substances include chemicals of concern and industrial and environmental toxins and contaminants that have the long-term potential to adversely affect health and well-being. Contaminants can be the result of poor cropland after years of prolonged pesticide usage and depleted soil quality, packaging creep, fracking, mining, use of wastewater for irrigation, the natural globalization of the ingredient supply, a gravitation towards outsourcing ingredient sourcing and manufacturing, and price point pressures. The substances can also include ingredients intentionally added to products for their functional or preservative properties. However, their use has caused consumers serious environmental or health concerns including reproductive toxicity, and persistent, bio-accumulative, carcinogenic, mutagenic and toxic effects. Leading retailers like Wal-Mart<sup>15</sup>, Whole Foods<sup>16</sup>, and Target<sup>17</sup> have established formal supplier standards that prohibit the use of certain chemicals of concern to help ensure the safety of the products they carry. Unlike other standards and protocols, the Clean Label Project Code of Practice aims to require and independently sample and perform unannounced routine finished product testing to provide consumers additional assurance as to the quality/purity of products they ingest, put on their skin, or use in their household.

The purpose of the Code of Practice is to:

- A. Provide a market tool and evaluation criteria for growers, suppliers, manufacturers, brand owners, and retailers to begin identifying, evaluating, and reducing contaminants/impurities within the supply chain
- B. Create a market opportunity for manufacturers looking to communicate this commitment to consumers
- C. Satisfy the growing consumer demand for transparency through an on-package market solution that is backed by testing and data
- D. Get back to the basics and provide consumers assurance and trust by looking beyond the flashy marketing because sometimes what's not on the label is the most important
- E. Create a certification standard with quality requirements for purity

Where applicable, the Clean Label Project relies on domestic and international regulatory standards and tolerances as sources of inspiration.

II. Scope

Growers, manufacturers, co-manufacturers, brand owners, restaurants, and retailers are eligible to apply for the Clean Label Project Code of Practice - Purity Award.

This Code of Practice outlines compliance documentation, supplier assurance, routine testing, and marketing requirements and guidelines.

III. Limitations

The contents of this document do require producing documentation demonstrating compliance to certain minimum applicable food safety standards. Certification and compliance to this Code of Practice does not constitute a guarantee of 100% of products are compliant to the stated limits. There is inherent variability in consumer-packaged goods batches, loads, and runs. However, QA programs that adhere to "best practices" should deliver high levels of consistency. There is a certain percent error that is assumed using analytical chemistry instrumentation at low detection levels. These shall be accounted for during the compliance evaluation process.

V. Definitions

- A. Administrator: The organization(s) contractually responsible for the Clean Label Project Code of Practice - Purity Award implementation and oversight.
- B. Awarded: An Operator that has been formally recognized by the Administrator as fulfilling the requirements as outlined in the Clean Label Project Code of Practice - Purity Award.
- C. Non-Compliant: Nonconformance to established requirements within the Clean Label Project Code of Practice - Purity Award.
- D. Operator: The organization, business, entity, or person(s) responsible for Clean Label Project - Purity Award compliance oversight.
- E. Compliant: Overall results found to be in the top 33% of the representative sample set.

VI. Compliance Framework

A. Initial Compliance Requirements

1. Proof of Food Safety/Good Manufacturing Practices (GMP) Compliance

Food safety and/or good manufacturing audits are now a normal and necessary component within the food and consumer product supply chain. An Operator shall provide proof of food safety or GMP compliance. Examples of food safety compliance include, but are not limited to, proof of certification under a Global Food Safety Initiative benchmarked standard or proof of compliance to other third-party specified food safety or GMP standards.

Standards such as USDA National Organic Program, Kosher, or another food quality/marketing standards, shall not be deemed sufficient.

Proof of Food Safety/GMP Compliance documentation shall be dated within the past 18 months. The location listed on the Proof of Food Safety Compliance documentation shall match the location of product manufacture disclosed on application documentation. If an Operator uses multiple co-packers or co-manufacturers, proof of food safety shall be supplied for each location.

Disclosure of a recall or any governmental inquiry such as California government inquiry into California Proposition 65 compliance shall be disclosed.

2. Product Specifications

The purpose of creating a product specification is to clearly define the requirements of a final product. Strictly following product specifications is necessary to control the quality, safety, and consistency of products. Food product specifications can include information like allergens, Brix, and other general and specific requirements as well as acceptable performance requirements. Other consumer packaged goods product specifications may include pH, viscosity, color, odor and other general and specific requirements as well as acceptable performance requirements.

To ensure ongoing compliance to the Clean Label Project Code of Practice, Operators should incorporate maximum impurities/contaminant tolerance thresholds for raw materials, in-process, or finished products purchased/sourced from suppliers.

Contaminants that shall be evaluated by the Administrator based on product type are listed in VIII.

Tolerance levels shall align with Clean Label Project threshold limits as determined by the Representative Benchmarked Sample Set top 1/3 as outlined in Appendix 2.

3. Established Standard Operating Procedure for Supplier Testing

The purpose of a Supplier Quality Assurance Program is to ensure a supplier's ability to deliver a good or service that will satisfy the customer's needs. A Supplier Quality Assurance Program can be an effective means to control the quality of incoming products or materials and ensure the products meet necessary specifications.

To ensure ongoing compliance to the Clean Label Project Code of Practice, Operators should have a Standard Operating Procedure in place to specify if:

1. The Operator will have the supplier perform compliance testing and/or
2. The Operator will perform independent testing as a condition of accepting the incoming material or in recognition that the finished product must comply with maximum tolerance levels as established by the Clean Label Project

The Standard Operating Procedure should include provisions for situations such as the following:

1. An Operator may elect to perform routine testing on all new and current suppliers.
2. An Operator may elect to utilize a risk assessment to identify high risk ingredients or suppliers to minimize costs and optimize testing efficiency.
3. An Operator may choose to do independent testing for some suppliers, and allow other suppliers to perform their own testing and supply the test results.

4. Ingredient Risk Assessment (requirement effective January 1, 2024)

As part of the application process, the brand shall complete a product risk analysis based on ingredients. The risk assessment shall include:

1. A list of all products seeking certification to Clean Label Project Code of Practice – Purity Award.
2. A list of all of the ingredients of each product seeking certification to the Clean Label Project Code of Practice – Purity Award.
3. An evaluation of whether each ingredient is of high, medium, or low risk for the contaminants categories outlined in Section VIII.
  - a. For ingredients classified as high risk, Operator shall provide additional documentation to indicate how risk is being mitigated/prevented.
4. A manufacturer/brand created overview of how they define high, medium, or low risk.

Note: The Administrator shall review the risk assessment and based on the Administrator's concurrence and findings, shall evaluate the need for additional surveillance testing for products with high-risk ingredients. The cost of additional surveillance testing shall be borne by the Operator.

5. Proof of Finished Product Test Compliance

Finished product testing is at the foundation of the Clean Label Project Code of Practice: Purity Award.

All products seeking Clean Label Project Code of Practice certification shall pass a test to ensure compliance to the Clean Label Project tolerances established in VIII.

1. Bracketing: In some cases, test bracketing may be utilized. Bracketing is the concept of using a representative sample (in many cases, the worst-case scenario) for purposes of identifying a sample whose test result may be representative of multiple products. Bracketing options shall be evaluated on a case-by-case basis and shall include an assessment by the Technical Administrator of the following:

- a. A comparison of the base formulations for the sample set
  - b. An evaluation of internal testing procedures
  - c. An Operator's track record of continued compliance with this Code of Practice
  - d. The Operator shall fill out an affidavit attesting to the accuracy formulation base and inform the Technical Administrator if there are any changes to the product formulation that may increase the variability in the formulation compared to the sample set.
  - e. In instances where the Operator is white labeling, co-manufacturing or making a product in multiple sizes, this section shall apply.
2. The Technical Administrator may charge for the administrative nature of the certification and bracketing process.

B. Renewal/Ongoing Compliance

All requirements outlined in Section VI. A apply. However, it should be noted that the Administrator of the Clean Label Project will perform testing at the Operator's expense. It is recommended that the Operator perform routine finished product testing to ensure ongoing compliance with the Clean Label Project Code of Practice - Purity Award.

The Administrator of the Clean Label Project shall annually confirm proof of compliance with Section VI. A.

It should be noted that the Clean Label Project Code of Practice - Purity Award is a living document. The requirements and scope of testing will be revisited on a regular basis and proactively communicated to Operators. Operators shall be provided with a minimum of 1-year implementation period when changes are made to the Clean Label Project Code of Practice - Purity Award.

VII. Administrator Requirements

A. Testing Requirements

1. The Administrator of the Clean Label Project shall perform and/or facilitate the testing associated with Clean Label Project - Purity Award compliance as outlined in VIII.
2. The Administrator shall perform random and unannounced sampling and testing of products. The Administrator may elect to perform risk-based testing. The cost of testing shall be borne by the Operator.
3. The Administrator shall inform Operators of their respective test results. If the Administrator tests a product resulting in a non-compliant test result (deemed as greater than 30% of the established limit), the Administrator shall inform the Operator in writing of the test results. To continue to comply with the Clean Label Project Code of Practice - Purity Award, the Operator shall perform a root cause analysis to determine the source of the non-compliant test result within 30 days of the non-compliant test result. This root cause analysis and corrective action plan shall be supplied to the Administrator in writing. The Administrator shall review the root cause analysis and corrective action plan and determine if acceptable. If not deemed acceptable by the Administrator, the Operator may be at risk of additional adverse action, up to but not limited to product certification revocation. The Operator should expect additional Administrative surveillance of this product.

Note I: During the course of testing, if the Administrator identifies a possible state or federal violation, the Operator may be notified of this possible violation in writing. Independent of Clean Label Project certification compliance, the onus is on the Operator to ensure compliance with all local, state, federal, and international statutes.

Note II: In the event that the Administrator identifies a possible state or federal violation, additional testing may be required. Additionally, the product may be identified as high risk and necessitate additional lot testing to ensure ongoing compliance. These instances shall be evaluated on a case-by-case basis.

4. Test results may be used to substantiate compliance for other Clean Label Project Codes of Practice certifications.
5. In the event of a non-compliant test result, the Administrator reserves the right to perform increased surveillance testing on the product and brand to ensure ongoing compliance with the Clean Label Project Code of Practice - Purity Award requirements. The cost of this testing shall be borne by the Operator. The Operator may elect to perform increased surveillance testing on the ingredient/supplier in question.
6. In accordance with Section VII. C.5, all sampling in Year 1 should be procured by the Administrator. The Administrator shall receive test results from the third-party laboratory directly. In subsequent years, The Administrator may permit approved Operators to utilize other Administrator pre-approved laboratories in accordance with Section VII. B.3.

B. Accreditation Requirements

1. The Administrator shall utilize ISO 17025 accredited laboratories to ensure test result accuracy, consistency, team member training and best practice.
2. The Administrator shall ensure ISO 17025 accredited laboratories remain in good standing.
3. The Administrator shall comply with ISO 17065, effective January 2024.

4. The Administrator may elect to outsource testing or approve a designated third-party laboratory. Any contract laboratory must provide proof of laboratory consistency, competency, and accuracy best practice, such as proof of ISO 17025 for the specified scope/matrix. The use of any laboratory used shall meet the necessary minimum level of detection / level of quantification needed to confirm compliance in accordance with Section VIII. Testing Requirements.
5. If a third-party laboratory is utilized, the Technical Administrator shall be listed as the entity receiving the test results directly from the third-party laboratory.

C. Sampling Requirements

1. The Administrator should sample products by simulating the consumer shopping experience. The Administrator shall procure enough sample to fulfill testing needs. This may only require that one sample be selected for testing.
2. The Administrator shall ideally procure samples through local or online retailers. If not feasible, the Administrator shall procure samples from the Operator's website or by the Operator directly. In that specific circumstance, the sample provided by the Operator must be in a finished sealed (unopened) package that would be sold at retail. The cost of the samples shall be borne by the Operator.

Note: Some Operators may elect to seek Clean Label Project Purity Award certification prior to market launch. The Administrator, on a case-by-case basis, shall evaluate the feasibility. The Administrator shall ensure that any product that is not yet in the marketplace that the sample received is representative of the product that will be in the marketplace and that the finished product packaging shall be evaluated for packaging migration issues. The Administrator may elect to utilize an affidavit and increased market surveillance testing to confirm product compliance. The cost of increased market surveillance testing shall be borne by the Operator.

3. Where applicable and feasible, the Administrator shall prepare/dilute samples in accordance with Operator packaging instructions.
4. The Administrator shall retain a picture of the product purchased, the lot number, and the receipt that shows the date, location, and retail of purchase. This information shall be provided to the Operator for purposes of root cause analysis, investigations, and continuous improvement.
5. In the initial year of certification, all products seeking certification should be procured by the Administrator to facilitate the testing process in accordance with Section VII B Accreditation Requirements and Section VII C.2.

D. Marketing Compliance Requirements

1. The Administrator shall be responsible for maintaining and publishing the list of all products on the Clean Label Project website.
2. Any product not meeting the requirements outlined in the Clean Label Project Code of Practice Sections VI.A, VI.B, or preventing the Administrator from fulfilling its requirements outlined in VII shall be found to be non-compliant with the Clean Label Project Code of Practice - Purity Award and issued a non-compliance.
3. In the event that a non-compliance goes unmitigated in excess of 90 days, the Clean Label Project will remove the product from the online listing and issue a notification that the product has been dropped from listing. Additional adverse action may be executed if the Operator continues to use the Clean Label Project certification mark on the dropped product.
4. The Administrator shall confirm the Operator's compliance to the Mark Use Requirements outlined in the Brand Standard.

E. Request for Deviation

1. Any request for deviation/variances to requirements of the Standard shall be provided in writing to the Technical Administrator.
2. Only extreme instances and Acts of God shall requests for deviation be made and subsequently considered.
3. The Technical Administrator in consultation with Clean Label Project, shall consider but is not obligated to grant the request for deviation and shall not be obligated to return any portion of fees paid if the Operator chooses to discontinue certification as a result of the request for deviation decision.
4. Requested variances shall be considered on a case-by-case basis.
5. Operators shall provide a written request to the Technical Administrator documenting the situation and proposed course of action for approval.
6. The Technical Administrator, in consultation with the Clean Label Project, shall produce a written response back to the Applicant/ Operator regarding the request for deviation within 10 business days.

F. Other Requirements

1. In the process of ensuring compliance to the Clean Label Project Code of Practice, the Clean Label Project provides necessary authority to the Administrator to require additional testing, surveillance, or documentation requests as deemed necessary.
2. The Administrator shall maintain strict confidentiality of all Operator's documentation and test reports.
3. In the event that the Administrator identifies fraudulent or egregious violations of this standard the Administrator reserves the right for immediate certification revocation for the entire operation and any and all products under the scope of certification.
